He lived the greater part of his life on his father's farm in the Valley, later was with the Pennsylvania Railroad for about a year. He had his residence in the county and was sent last fall to Camp Meade from this county. He was in the 36th Infantry in that camp and went over to France early this year. LIEUT. MORRIS FLIES HOME

In Curtis Plane for His Thanksgiving Dinner.

Lieut. J. Theodore Morris, son of Dr. Morris, druggist, on Chambersburg street and wife, is the first Gettysburgian to fly to his home for his Thanksgiving dinner. The trip was a record breaker in more than one way. It is the first of the modern planes to come to Gettysburg and Gettysburg people have not seen a plane in actual successful flight here. It was the first to fly over the town. Lieut. Morris arrived at the noon hour on Wednesday from Spring Grove and flew northward over the town first toward his home and circled over it, then swung in big loops over Gettysburg coming from quite a height to the distance that seemed close to the highest building. He was driving a Curtis biplane and gave a most interesting demonstration to our people, attracting the people into the streets to watch him. Lieut. Morris left Mincola, Long Island, at 1 o'clock on Tuesday and landed at Spring Grove where he was well acquainted. He arrived there about 4:30 and later in the evening came to Gettysburg by train to locate a landing place. Returning to Spring Grove on Wednesday morning he left there after 11:30 o'clock, giving first an exhibition over that town and then sailed for Gettysburg arriving about noon. With Lieut. Morris was Lieut. H. R. Searing.

The landing in Gettysburg was in the Warner field west of Washington street, which has been occupied by Camp Colt and where there was a fine stretch for landing. The plane was put under guard while here and was visited by hundreds of town people and by the S. A. T. C. boys.

DISTRICT NURSE REPORT IN THE AMERICAN DRIVE

PRESENTED BY DR. SINGMASTER AT THE ANNUAL MEETING

Containing the Well-Deserved Testimonials as to the Services of Miss Kate Briel.

The seventh annual report of the Gettysburg Nursing Association prepared and read by Dr. J. A. Singmaster at the annual meeting reported in our last issue was as follows:

The past year has been one of the most momentous in the history of mankind; for it marks the decline and overthrow of the German Empire which had brought untold misery upon the whole world in its mad endeavor to gain universal dominion. Our own brave boys have brought honor to our community by their heroism on the field of battle, making noble sacrifices for humanity and in some cases laying their lives upon the altar of liberty. The members of the Nursing Association have contributed in many ways their loyal and liberal support to our national government during the days of peril. But it was not until the war was practically won that we, in common with other lands, were called upon to face a frightful epidemic, which has destroyed more lives in the United States than the war in Europe has cost us. It was at this crisis that our devoted nurse showed her zeal and courage in ministering especially to hundreds of the stricken soldiers.

We are happy to publish the following testimonial to her efficiency from Miss Hill, the head Red Cross nurse of the camp. She writes: "We were especially grateful to Gettysburg for giving up Miss Kate Briel to us during the epidemic. Miss Briel mothered the sick boys at Xavier Hall through the entire epidemic and many a man owes his life to her. The town is most fortunate in having her as Civic Nurse."

Another tribute to Miss Briel's fidelity is contained in the following letter from the pastor of St. Francis Xavier Church:

"In your report to the Civic Nurse Association, which, no doubt, you will be making in the near future, permit me to endorse the re-appointment of Miss Briel as the civic nurse for another term. Her services to the community are indispensable. I have come in contact with her time and time again on my various sick calls and the work she has been doing cannot be measured by dollars and cents."

"Her work in Xavier Hall Emergency Hospital was spoken of in the highest terms by the doctors in charge and the gentle, unassuming manner in which she performed her duties won for her from the patients the beautiful title of 'mother.'"

"The patients loved to see her come to them for her sunny smiles seemed to awaken in their hearts a new feeling."

"I hope therefore that she will be retained and, if possible, her worth recognized by an increase in salary."

Very sincerely in Christ,
W. F. BOYLE.

The past year has demonstrated again the wisdom of maintaining the Nursing Association. The good that it is doing cannot be tabulated. The following is a very brief and inadequate record of Miss Briel's work.

Number of visits made	1292
Families visited	263
Dues received	$233.40
I. L. Taylor, the treasurer, reports the following receipts and expenditures:
Receipts	$986.50
Expenditures	741.35
Balance	$245.15

He also holds a Reserve Fund of $400.00.

The numerous calls upon the charitable for the support of war work has undoubtedly diminished the contributions for the support of our association. For this, however, there is really no excuse. The community has profited through the presence of the camp and the resources of our banks indicate that the people are prosperous. The liberal subscriptions for Liberty Bonds show that they have money to invest. It would be discreditable to our good town to allow the association to languish. It is the one un denominational cause among us. It makes its appeal to all, because it works for all. No more unselfish and benevolent enterprise than this can be imagined.

We pray, therefore, that unstinted support be given to the association, and we trust that many present here to-night may voluntarily make their contributions at once, and that others will welcome our solicitors when they call at their homes.

Let me remind the public again that one dollar a year constitutes a person an active member and five dollars makes him a sustaining member.

An increase in salary of Miss Briel from $50 to $60 was recommended. The full board of officers of the Nursing Association is as follows: President, Dr. J. A. Singmaster; First Vice President, Rev. F. E. Taylor; Second Vice President, Miss Annie Horner; Secretary, Mrs. Donald P. McPherson; Treasurer, I. L. Taylor; Mrs. Wm. Arch. McLean, Dr. L. A. Parsons, Mrs. Karl J. Grimm, Mrs. Milton R. Remmel, Charles W. Gardner, P. G. Breighner, Hon. E. P. Miller, Mrs. W. A. Martin, Mrs. J. L. Butt, Mrs. H. T. Weaver, Miss Anna Reck.

LT. CLYDE L. BREAM DESCRIBES THE WINNING FRONT.

Crushing Ahead with Artillery Hub to Hub Belching Destruction to the Hun.

Lieut. Clyde L. Bream, of the 128th Infantry, 32nd Division, Army of Occupation, A. E. F., writes his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Mark Bream, of 202 Carlisle street, that on the eve of his birthday they have received the news of Austria's collapse, and he says it is his fervent prayer that such is the case, and that within a short time peace will be declared. In another letter he says that before he gets an answer to his letter he believes peace will be declared. He says he made a trip of twenty kilometers (13 miles) back to a U. S. railroad. This is the terminus of a railroad, for the supplying of an army corps. You would be surprised, overwhelmed, to see the vast amount of American soldiers, American material, U. S. A. railroads, run by American trainmen, U. S. A. cars, U. S. A. trucks by the thousands, etc., which are in France. It is awful to think that so much money, so many men and so much material must be turned from peaceful pursuits and happiness and prosperity to ends which lead to destruction!

The country, (hilly and previously wooded) on which we are located is the greatest mass of ruins your imagination can picture. Miles of country churned up like it had been plowed, not a tree left standing, in what was once a partially wooded hill. Impassable now on foot due to shell holes, fallen trees, and barbed wire. Not just a stretch of it, but for miles and miles around. It is quite common now to mass artillery hub to hub and lay down a barrage for eight to ten hours and during that time one battery will shoot 8000 shells on your immediate front. And there are towns completely wiped out, only one or two walls left standing, the remainder of the buildings level with the ground. I cannot see how it will be possible to farm land (after an artillery bombardment) for many years to come, as when the Germans retreat they destroy everything.

I have been at Langres, France, since the beginning of October. This is a wonderful place. Old as the hills and built on a large hill, completely surrounded by walls. The old Roman road runs through the town and a triumphal arch of Caesar's still stands. Look up the history of the city and see what you can find; you will have some interesting reading. My birthday passed uneventful. I spent it at the delousing plant. On that particular day I missed my breakfast and had a cold lunch for dinner and supper, but have made up for it since. Have had hot cakes, beefsteak, hot biscuits, doughnuts, cold slaw, mashed potatoes, jam and canned fruit. All this has played an important part on our menus since then. I am at present in charge of all wheel transportation in the regiment, some 117 wagons and carts, and we are now awaiting orders to move. When you answer this particular letter (the answer which I will receive about Christmas) let me know what the people at home are thinking of the prospects of this war. Make it what you think, father. It is my belief that when the answer to this letter comes back, the war will be over. If it does however last until spring, you will see the German army suffer the most terrible defeat that ever befell any army. Much greater than the French suffered at Waterloo. As General Sherman said, "War is hell," and I believe this is the helliest place in all hell.

As I said before in this letter, the artillery is massed hub to hub by the thousands of guns—nothing ever like it in history. The earth rumbles like an earthquake from the explosions of guns and shells. My dugout is thirty feet under ground.

Millions of sacrificed men will count as "nil" if Germany, Austria, Russia, and the Balkans eventually free themselves from autocracy and become federated states and republics. History never counts men, but results, and to this end we all struggle along. "Our spirit high, that live or die, we glorify His Majesty; and ever be within His sight. His true and upright, sweet and stainless, pure and sinless, Perfect Knight."

Write one, write all, real often.

Your loving son,
CLYDE L. BREAM.

Setting Sponges on Top of the World
Sergeant Horace E. Smiley, Gettysburg's Chief of Police, who is now with Field Bakery No. 304 Somewhere in France, and who has now seen more than a year of service overseas, writes to the home folks dealing mostly with matters pertaining to prices of things over there and local happenings in the old burg of which he has learned. The letter is dated "Same Place, October 24, 1918."

After saying that he has a boil about the size of an egg just above the right wrist he writes: "It goes pretty tough to work with it too, but I won't quit, but believe me I feel like quitting when it comes to setting three hundred pound sponges with a bum wing. That is all I do now, set sponges. Would like to tell you more about my work, but with all that I am happy and feel as though I am sitting on the top of the world. Just at present I am broke as flat as a cake, but as I do not draw very much after paying insurance and other things, will give you an idea where it goes. I had a pair of shoes soled and heeled this week and got them last night. It cost thirteen francs, which in our money is about two dollars and a half. Can you beat that? And as Ivan Frey said, 'It was not such a Christly good job at that.' And then with my laundry and barber work and a few other trifles my money is 'finish.' But never mind, I will get by somehow. Perhaps I am better off over here without much money. In one of the last letters you said that Wilson and the force wanted to send me some tobacco. That is very kind of them, and tell them that I thank them ever so much for the offer, but it is impossible for me to get that order. Those orders, I understand, are only given for those things that cannot be obtained over here, and I am fortunate enough to have gobs of tobacco, although just one year ago I was shooting snipes. Never thought I would get down that far, did you? But its a fact. Fortunately I was working with a bunch of little short guys and I could lay the said snipes up high enough so they could not reach them, though several times I caught them trying to give one another a boost. I sent my Christmas package over yesterday and asked for a pair of working gloves. You know about what I mean. I was going to buy a pair over where we were last winter but they wanted forty francs, or more than seven dollars, so I had to back up. And so for the papers I average one paper every two months. I can't for the life of me see where they go to. Perhaps they are like a letter that was handed to me this noon. It was addressed as plainly as could be to a fellow of the same name as mine, but belonging to a Field Artillery Regiment stationed at Camp Beaurgard, Louisiana. But if you don't mind keeping on sending them, perhaps some of them will come through, and you can rest assured that I am very glad for the ones that do come no matter how old they may be when they get here. I can imagine how that 'dry' order must have been to some around the town. Some of them will no doubt lose their voices now, and Andy will have to be on the lookout for moonshiners and bootleggers. I would give me right leg to be 'wid ye' for the hunting season this fall, but you know what they used to say about Sing Carter. 'Dis niggah must be conquered.'"

Missing Son Writes Home.

H. G. Baugher and family declare they had a real Thanksgiving by receiving the following letter from their son, George Baugher, who was officially reported to them as missing in action from Oct. 20 to 30. The letter is dated October 28.

Dear Father:

I appreciated the letter you sent me. I am glad you had not forgotten me. I know you are very busy now. You have a lot of extra work since Chester and most all the boys have been called into service, but cheer up, for they are needed to help bring this mighty conflict to an end, so much the sooner, and then we will return and be of help once more.

I received your letter after returning from the front lines. I have had my first taste of real warfare. I need not try (and possibly it would not pass) to tell you where and how we made our big drive. The papers will tell you what the boys did in the battle of the Argonne and on toward the Meuse River on the Verdun front.

I now with five others from our company are enjoying a seven days' leave in La Bourboule, the most beautiful spot in France. It is a summer resort for the rich of both England and France. It is sure a heaven after sleeping on the ground with a rock for a pillow to come to a soft bed, with a big snowy pillow, and then to get away from army chow, to sit down to the best meals. We went to Monte Dore where the water comes right out of the rocks boiling hot. We had three hot mineral baths. These baths drive away all your rheumatism.

At the Y. M. C. A. we see the best of shows, and Saturday night was a dance with real American girls, the first I have seen since in France. Sunday went to two services, heard a fine sermon with good singing.

I do not know how I will be able to go back to my company and drive after all this.

I will close with the old slogan, (write often).

Peace Parade Called Off.

Orders for the big peace parade and celebration which was to have taken place at East Berlin on Saturday evening, have been canceled due to the influenza which has not abated in that vicinity.

Pardon Not Granted.

The Board of Pardons of Pennsylvania on Thursday of last week heard the application of Bessie Toddes, a prisoner in the Adams County jail undergoing a sentence of one year and a fine of $1000 for keeping a bawdy house. She wanted to pay the fine and escape the imprisonment and presented a paper with 300 names asking for such clemency for her. Other papers were presented in opposition with as many names asking the Board not to extend any clemency. The Board refused her application.

Total Fourth Liberty Loan Issues.

The approximate final figures for the Fourth Loan subscriptions were $6,000,000, or 16.48 percent more than was called for. This over-subscription the Government will accept, making the total amount put into Government war loans by the people, including War Savings Stamps, $17,582,000,000. Items included in this total are: First Loan, $2,000,000,000; Second Loan, $3,808,000,000; Third Loan, $4,176,000,000 and War Savings, $790,000,000. In the Fourth Loan every district was oversubscribed. The third issue comes to maturity in 1928. The maturities of other issues are: First loan, 1-30 year; Second, 15-25, and Fourth, 15-20, which reveals that well-studied purpose has run through the fixing of the limits of the life of the several issues of the bonds.

As to the number of Liberty Loan issues yet to be required, undetermined factors control. These chiefly are the policy of this Government in the extension of future loans to the Allies; the length of time our forces will be needed in Europe for police work, and the time necessary to bring our men home.

WHEAT SHOWED SPIRIT OF U. S.

Sacrifice to Ensure Allied Food
Greatest Single Food Achievement.

SUFFICIENT SUPPLY NOW.

All the Nations Will Be Able to Return to Their Normal Supply of White Bread.

Overshadowing all other accomplishments of the American people under the leadership of Food Administration is the history of wheat exports in the past sixteen months. Our wheat export program proved conclusively to the world that America was in this war from start to finish and willing to make any sacrifice that will hasten victory or maintain the health and strength of people overseas, upon whom rested the heaviest weight of our war.

Now that pressure on ocean tonnage is eased by the stopping of large movements of troops to Europe, we may relax our efforts to save wheat. The accumulated surplus in Australia, Argentina and other hitherto inaccessible markets will become available, and probably no more than our normal surplus will have to leave this country. We in America and the nations which have won the right to freedom will be enabled to eat their normal wheat loaf at the common table of the people of democracy.

We entered the past crop year with a wheat supply which gave us only 20,000,000 bushels available for export. When the crop year ended we had 141,000,000 bushels of wheat to spare. The American people had saved out of their normal consumption 121,000,000 bushels.

A survey of export figures shows that the conservation of flour brought about by the wheatless meals, wheatless days, substitution in our kitchens and bakeries, enabled us to send to our armies and the allies 33,000,000 barrels of white flour—wheat figured as flour. Had we exported only our visible surplus, we would have been able to ship less than 4,500,000 barrels.

Before the 1st of December our surplus had gone overseas, and an additional 36,000,000 bushels had been taken from the stock reserved for home consumption and added to the surplus already shipped to the allies. It seemed hardly possible that we could bring our total exports above 100,000,000 bushels by July 1. But in January the late Lord Rothermere, then British Food Controller, called that unless we could send an additional 75,000,000 bushels he could not take responsibility for assuring his people that they would be fed. The American people responded by sending 85,000,000 bushels of wheat, saved from their home consumption, between the first of the year and the advent of the new crop.

By October 10, 1918, we had already shipped 65,000,000 bushels since July 1. Absolutely the only limitation upon our wheat exports since the latest harvest has been the scarcity of ocean tonnage. If exports continue at the present rate, by July 1 of next year we will have sent more than 237,500,000 bushels to Europe.

Thus are we making good America's pledge that the bread rations of Allied Europe shall be maintained.

A Memorable Achievement of the Titanic Struggle

America saved and sent to Europe in a year of crop failure 141,000,000 bushels of wheat, which saved Europe.

A GERMAN HOPE DISPROVED

AND

A GERMAN FEAR CONFIRMED

A statement made by a prominent German official soon after this country was declared in a state of war with Germany shows that even in the enemy country clear thinking students did not undervalue the strength of the American republic. Only in his confidence that we could not land in Europe sufficient troops to affect the final decision was this German mistaken.

"I do not fear the American soldiers," he told a high official of our government, "because they cannot arrive in time. What I fear is the intelligence and devotion of one hundred million original minds and people trained to a faith in individual initiative. The day that these people, now so materialistic in outward appearance, are stirred spiritually, that day is the day of Germany's doom."

The people of the United States must continue care and wise economy in the use of food in order to complete the work of liberating the world. But even with the utmost conservation and production in this country there will be in Europe for the next year or more starvation beyond all human power to relieve. In North Russia there are 40,000,000 people to whom food cannot be made accessible this winter. Their transportation is demoralized in complete anarchy. And even if internal transport can be assured their ports of entry would soon be frozen. Millions more who have felt keenly the oppression of war will be beyond reach of assistance.

We must realize that upon our shoulders rests a greater responsibility than we have ever before been asked to assume. We must realize that millions of lives depend absolutely upon the continued service and sacrifice of the American people.

We must realize that the specter of famine abroad now haunts the abundance of our table at home.

Europe Needs Nearly Double Last Year's Supplies From America.

ECONOMY MUST CONTINUE.

World Survey Shows Sufficient Wheat, But Shortage of Fats—Government's Stimulative Program Justified.

With the return of peace America is confronted by a food problem even harder of solution than that with which we coped in time of war. We have an entirely new world situation in food. It will mean essential changes in our domestic program. But more important than this, it must of necessity require increased export.

Last year we shipped 11,520,000 tons of foodstuffs to the European Allies. Had the war continued we would have increased this enormous figure to 17,750,000 tons in the present year. Now, with the responsibility of feeding millions of people liberated from the German yoke, our exports must be brought up to at least 20,000,000 tons—practically the limit of loading capacity at our ports.

World Food Demand Increased.

The end of the war will create an enormously increased demand for food. Humanity demands that the starving millions freed from Prussian oppression shall have sufficient supplies to assure their return to health and prosperity. If these liberated nations are faced with starvation they cannot establish orderly governments. Hunger breeds anarchy in a people. The war to free the world for democracy will be lost after it has been won. America must continue its work to liberation and by sharing its food make democracy safe in the world.

In order to meet this new situation the Food Administration has made a careful survey of the food resources of the whole world in relation to the war demands. Computing supplies on the basis of the avoidance of waste and war consumption, it is found that wheat and rye may be obtained in sufficient quantities to meet economical world consumption, high protein feed for dairy animals will show a shortage of about 7,000,000 tons, while there will be sufficient supplies of other feeds to allow economical consumption; beans, peas and rice will also be found in sufficient quantities to maintain economy in consumption; there will be sufficient supplies of beef to keep pace with the capacity of refrigerating space.

Great Fat Shortage.

The most distinct reversal of policy will come with pork and dairy products, vegetable oils, sugar and coffee. Almost economy will be required in the use of fats and oils, in which there is a world shortage of about 3,000,000,000 pounds. There are sufficient supplies for us to return to our normal sugar consumption if other nations continue their present short rations, or even if their rations are slightly increased. If the European countries, however, are to resume their normal sugar consumption it will be through our continued conservation in order to share with them. There is a surplus of coffee.

Of the world total required to produce these results North America will furnish more than 60 per cent. The United States, including the West Indies, will be in a position to furnish a total of about 20,000,000 tons—against our pre-war exports of about 6,000,000 tons.

The bread grains situation allows the world to abandon the use of substitutes in wheat bread. Large supplies have accumulated in the Argentine, Australia and other hitherto inaccessible markets. A continued high milling percentage, economy of consumption and elimination of waste make it possible for the world to return to a white wheat loaf.

Of all our export possibilities fats, the largest and most important from its pork. While we cannot supply the world deficiency, we will be able to help it enormously because of the past policies of stimulating production and restraining consumption. The government's policy with regard to stimulating the production of wheat and of pork, the readiest source of fats, is thus amply justified by the situation upon the return of peace.

Famine Specter Still Stalks.

The people of the United States must continue care and wise economy in the use of food in order to complete the work of liberating the world. But even with the utmost conservation and production in this country there will be in Europe for the next year or more starvation beyond all human power to relieve. In North Russia there are 40,000,000 people to whom food cannot be made accessible this winter. Their transportation is demoralized in complete anarchy. And even if internal transport can be assured their ports of entry would soon be frozen. Millions more who have felt keenly the oppression of war will be beyond reach of assistance.

We must realize that upon our shoulders rests a greater responsibility than we have ever before been asked to assume. We must realize that millions of lives depend absolutely upon the continued service and sacrifice of the American people.

We must realize that the specter of famine abroad now haunts the abundance of our table at home.

CHARACTER SHOWS IN FACE

Good Thoughts Look Out Through Kindly Eyes and Fair Pleasant Features.

Our faces are open diaries, in which any one may read the record of how we spend our days, what we think, the sort of people we are. When we say of a man that "he has a fine face," or of a woman that "she has a beautiful face," we speak of the life back of the face. What is a surer indication of this than when we see a child draw away from a first glimpse of a person? What is often so truly condemnatory as the instinctive remark of a child: "I don't like her face, mamma?"

Not always true, perhaps, not in every instance is the child right, but how often is it unerring!

If we waste the precious passing years in chasing butterflies and flirting pleasure; if we grow hard and narrow because of disappointments, or through self-indulgence, it is registered where even the child who draws away from us reads it. The mind that generally thinks "good thoughts, true thoughts, thoughts fit to treasure up," looks out upon the world through kindly eyes and fair and pleasant features. The face of an evil man or woman wears a malignant saturnine aspect, that gives the world a warning of the finer nature.

The eyes are more eloquent than the tongue in telling others what we are.

We never hide from discerning eyes as much as we sometimes think we do. Our faces invariably tell our stories.

German Morals.

A senator was talking at a tea in Providence about the Germans.

"I heard a young lady schoolteacher tell a story the other day," he said, "which brought the Germans vividly to my mind.

"The young lady said she came upon two of her pupils one afternoon in a wood. The older pupil was eating a stick of candy. The younger one was howling with rage and grief on the ground. The young lady inquired into the matter and soon learned how the land lay.

"Gus," she said to the older boy indignantly, "do you think it's fair to take Tommy's stick of candy away from him?"

"Fair?" said Gus, as he sucked away. "I don't have to be fair. I can lick him."—Washington Star.

STEADFAST CONFIDENCE.

The Following Statement Should Form Conclusive Proof of Merit to Every Gettysburg Reader.

Could stronger proof of the merit of any remedy be desired than the statements of grateful endorers who say their confidence has been undiminished by lapse of time? These are the kind of statements that are appearing constantly in your local papers for Doan's Kidney Pills. They are twice-told and confirmed, with new enthusiasm. Can any reader doubt the following? It's from a Gettysburg resident:

Mrs. Mary Ohler, 147 Hanover St., says: "I was troubled by weak kidneys for over a year. My back ached constantly and pains extended from my loins into my head. I had chills and dizzy spells and was bothered by my kidneys acting irregularly. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills so highly recommended I got a box at the Peoples Drug Store and commenced their use. A few doses brought relief and after using them for a short time, all symptoms of the trouble left."

AFTER MANY YEARS.

Over six years later, Mrs. Ohler said: "I heartily recommended Doan's Kidney Pills again and confirmed all I previously said about them. Doan's should be in every home."

Price 60¢ at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Ohler had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mgrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

AEROPLANES AND TRUCKS

To Serve the People in New Lines of Usefulness.

The World War has made the United States the proprietor of thousands of aeroplanes and motor trucks and it has been announced that the War Department is prepared to turn over the planes to the Post Office Department for establishment of aerial mail routes. The New York and Chicago mail begins next week and it is predicted mails will be flying soon in all directions.

On Tuesday evening there was a meeting at Two Taverns showing what was proposed to do with the motor trucks, linking up the cities with the rural communities for market purposes. Adams county will have the distinction of furnishing the terminus at Two Taverns for the first route so created. The project was explained by Congressman M. Clyde Kelly, of Pittsburgh. Charles S. Myers, Motor Truck Route Agent, representing the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, and Edward J. Ward, of the United States Bureau of Information.

As a result of the meeting the Mt. Joy Community Association was formed with Dr. Calvin Rudisill as president; Frank Waybright as vice president; and A. Nevin Sponseller as community secretary. This first route will be to Washington with an agent at that point. He will inform the agent here daily of country produce, vegetables and other products he can handle. The agent here will give daily needs here of supplies available, and needs here from other end of line, and the agents act as collecting agents at the ends of lines. It is proposed to have 280,000 of such stations established in the United States and Mt. Joy township will have the honor of being the first one to be started and that the linking up of the cities with rural communities it is believed will be of great benefit to the entire country.

Seven committees will handle the work of the Mt. Joy Community Association which has a broad field for its activities and holds its membership open to all citizens. The first committee is that on food production and marketing; the second on savings and investment; the third on health and sanitation; the fourth on employment service; the fifth on recreation and the interests of youth; the sixth on child welfare; and the seventh will be composed of the heads of the others and will constitute the executive committee.

United War Work Fund Over Top.

Total subscriptions to the United War Work Campaign were $203,179.038, or $32,079,038 in excess of the amount originally asked by the seven war relief organizations for their work during demobilization of the army and navy, according to an official announcement by the national campaign committee. This is the largest sum ever raised as an outright gift in the history of the world. Every State went "over the top." Fourteen States pledged 150 per cent or more. Arizona heads the list with 248 per cent of its quota. The army and navy gave $68,349.

Adams county went over the top with a quota of $18,000.

Dr. John K. Mott, director general of the campaign, made the following comment on the drive:

"The campaign is over and the result is the largest sum ever provided through voluntary offerings in the history of mankind. When the unfavorable circumstances which attended this great effort are borne in mind, the result becomes all the more remarkable. No great campaign was ever preceded by such a brief preparation. Even the scant two months left for this purpose were cut into for three weeks by the Fourth Liberty Loan, and, near the threshold of of the campaign itself, by a general Congressional election.

"More serious still was the nationwide spread of the deadly influenza epidemic, which had a death toll of twice as many lives as America has laid down in the war. The speaking program had virtually to be abandoned.

"The signing of the armistice which thrilled and absolutely absorbed the minds and hearts of the people, claimed the initial day of the campaign with its spontaneous celebrations. In addition, certain States devoted the following day to a peace holiday.

"In the face of all these and other very real difficulties and handicaps, the fact that the leaders and friends of the co-operating agencies have been able to carry the campaign through with such signal success and favor is nothing less than marvelous and constitutes an event truly worthy of the great days in which we are living and of the great cause for which men have been dying.

Have Liberty Bonds Registered.

To insure against loss or theft of Liberty Bonds, owners are being urged by the Treasury to have their coupon bonds registered, although the procedure results in a great amount of work and expense for the Government now that the number of bond owners runs about thirty millions. The registration can be arranged at most banks, and is done without cost to the owner. After registration, if a bond is accidentally lost, stolen, or destroyed, the Government will pay it at maturity just the same, and interest checks will be mailed to the bond owner twice a year without requiring him to go to the trouble of clipping coupons and presenting them at bank.

The fact that bonds of the First Liberty Loan or bonds of the Second Liberty Loan are converted into bonds bearing higher rate of interest does not affect the dates on which interest is payable," explains a Treasury announcement.

Interest is paid on bonds of the first loan, regardless of whether they have been converted, on June 15 and December 15; on bonds of the second loan, May 15 and November 15; third loan, March 15 and September 15; fourth loan, April 15 and October 15.

The Treasury also explains that owing to the mechanical difficulties of millions of interest checks on registered bonds, coupon bonds will not be exchanged for registered bonds or registered bonds transferred on the books from one owner to another, during a month before an interest paying date of each particular loan. For example, exchanges or transfers cannot be arranged for First Liberty Loan bonds between May 15 and June 16; and between November 15 and December 16. For the Second Loan, these dates would be April 15 to May 16; and October 15 to November 16. For the Third Loan, February 15 to March 16; and August 15 to September 16. For the Fourth Loan, March 15 to April 16; and September 15 to October 16.

This arrangement is explained by the Treasury as follows:

"During any period when the transfer books for any particular loan are closed no transfers of registered bonds of such loan or interchange of bonds of such loan or interchange of bonds of such loan will be permitted, but if requests for transfer of any such registered bonds or interchanges of any such registered and coupon bonds are received during any such closed period, the requests will receive attention upon the reopening of the books."

"The semi-annual interest will be paid to the person in whose name bonds are registered as shown by the books of the Treasury Department on the date the books close regardless of any disposition that may be made by the registered holder during the closed period. If coupon bonds are presented for exchange for registered bonds during such closed periods, the coupon next due should be detached and collected in the usual manner. If registered bonds are presented for exchange for coupon bonds during such closed periods, interest on such registered bonds will be paid in the usual manner, and the coupon bonds delivered upon such exchange after the reopening of the books will have the coupon maturing on the interest day for which the books were closed and prior coupons detached."

German Prison Horrors.

The Allies are going to be mad through and through as they witness the horrors of the German prison camps. One eye-witness writes: "I have never seen human beings in such a state of raggedness, hunger and misery. When the camp at Forbach, thirty-eight miles east of Metz, as well as those elsewhere, was broken up, the prisoners, most of whom were captured during the March offensive, were told to clear out and seek help from their allies. They started to walk the fifty or sixty miles to the Allied lines, but were given no food and had no money. They were in shameful rags, the soles dropping off their boots. Some wore cloths and no socks. "They left the prison camps in droves of hundreds in charge of German officers and soldiers who had deserted. The weather was very cold, and many died by the roadside within a few miles from friends. When the survivors entered the French lines, French soldiers who were hardened war heroes were horrified to see men in such a plight. It is not doubted that this suffering was intentionally imposed upon the British. Prisoners of other nationalities are agreed that the British were treated worse than the others at all German camps."

DEATHS.

Howard Mummert, of New Oxford. Funeral on Thursday by Rev. S. A. Diehl with interment in Hanover Cemetery.

Miss Ollie Bucher, daughter of the late Isaac and Sarah Bucher, died in Cashtown Sunday aged 48 years and 22 days. She leaves three brothers and sisters: Larkin J. Bucher, of near Gettysburg; Mrs. Horner Eckert, of Hanover; Mrs. Harry Deardorff, of Cashtown; Mrs. Quentin Deardorff, of Mummansburg; and Harry Bucher, of Seven Stars. Funeral was on Wednesday, services at Flohr's Church, interment at Arendtsville.

Charles Phillips, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Phillips, near East Berlin, died in the York Hospital from the effects of poisoning by caustic soda. He was 1 year, 6 months and 4 days old. About two weeks ago, a three-year-old sister of the child, Isabelle, playing about the kitchen sink got hold of some caustic soda and put it on the nipple of the child's milk bottle. The child became ill but death did not occur until Thursday night. Besides his parents he is survived by two sisters, Isabelle and Geraldine. The funeral was held on Sunday and interment was made in Hampton Church Cemetery.

Earl M. Lawrence, a soldier at Camp Colt, died Wednesday morning in the camp hospital from the "flu." He was 23 years of age and his home was at Exeter, New Hampshire. A brother, who is in the U. S. Marines, spent the past few days here and was with him when he died.

"ON THE SQUARE"

The Foolish Letter

By S. B. HACKLEY

(Copyright, 1915, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Stacy, I've got a new job."

His thin, dark face lit with his engaging smile, Kent Traile pushed open the door of the shabby combination sitting room and bedroom in the "Trails" rented quarters.

Mrs. Traile sealed the letter in her hands before she spoke, and her voice was perfunctory. "What is it, Kent?"

He waved a yellow handbill and read aloud:

"Six hundred acres of hops ready for picking! Five hundred pickers wanted! Fine camp grounds, good water, free wood, a month's pleasant work in the open country at good pay. Apply to Bloom Brothers."

"I applied this morning, Stacy Bloom, the elder Bloom," he chuckled at the pun, "says a fellow may go out tomorrow and live in one of the tents if he wishes, though the actual work doesn't begin until Monday. John Wharton says the money end ought to be good. Sold him hopped some and never failed to make as much as $4 a day. Said it wasn't hard work, and lots of women and girls made more than he did." He glanced at her indifferent profile a bit uncertainly. "How would you like to try the picking, Stacy? You were saying the other day you wished we could afford to go out camping."

"We surely need money," her tone was as soft and as cold as a snowflake, "and if you don't mind doing that kind of work, and it seems any sort of work appeals to you, you'd as well take it. I am going to Eleanor Meade's Monday. I haven't felt I could afford proper clothes before—I can't now—there's very little of my savings left in the bank, but I'm going down town now to buy some things. I've got where I'm going to let the to-morrow take care of itself."

Kent, surprised into silence, colored darkly, and she went out. From the moment of her first acquaintance with Anastasia Purcell,

"What is it, Kent?"

Eleanor Meade had admired and loved her. Both were trained nurses, but Eleanor had hated work and had eagerly seized her opportunity to marry a rich man. Then two years later in the face of Eleanor's strong disapproval and insistence that she was "throwing herself away," Anastasia had quit the nursing which she loved for Kent Traile, whom she loved even better.

An attack of pneumonia had almost ended his life, but her fingers had held him back, and when he could sit up he had talked to her very confidentially. He had tried many things in his life, he told her, first school teaching—two years of it—then he had given up that and studied law a while; then he had inherited a little money and tried farming, but he'd lost money at that, and, trying stock-raising, lost the rest of it.

"I've nothing to offer you," he had whispered, his dark eyes brilliant with feeling, "and so I don't dare ask you to marry me. But I want you to know I love you, and shall be loving you all my life—I want you to know that, Anastasia, dear."

And with his wasted hands holding her strong fingers Anastasia had felt her better judgment swept away.

"Oh, Kent," she had said, "I want you to ask me to take you for better or for worse."

For five months after their marriage Kent had held his place as bookkeeper for a soap manufacturing firm, and Anastasia had made his salary go a long way in their modest house. Then he thought he saw a better opening and left the bookkeeping, and it was weeks before he got the next job, clerking in a hardware store. After that he had retained his job for a shorter and a shorter time, and in the last year he had done anything he could get. Six weeks before he had given up a carpenter's job, thinking something better would turn up. But nothing had turned up until he had seen the hop growers' advertisement. It would be more pleasant for Anastasia to be with Eleanor, and when the hopping was over he could meet her at the station near the Meades' and they could come home together. Then he'd try to get a job and keep it permanently; he was afraid Anastasia was getting out of patience with him. He was still sitting, planning, when Anastasia came back with her bundles.

A week in the Meades' luxurious home had not passed before Anastasia made up her mind to something she had contemplated for months—to leave Kent.

She was weary of financial uncertainty, she had to draw on her savings in the intervals between Kent's jobs, until there was but a pittance left; he had never wanted her to work, but she would go back to nursing, for which her heart craved, and be earning while she was in her earning years, and let poor Kent go his foolish, impractical way alone!

Early one morning at the end of the second week, Arnold Meade announced that he was going to take Anastasia and Mrs. Meade to see some hoplands 20 miles from their home. Anastasia sealed the letter she knew would be a knife thrust in Kent's heart, and slipped it in the pocket of her skirt for mailing in the next town.

They passed through one town, another, a third, but Anastasia still clutched her letter.

"I'll mail it to-morrow," she thought unhappily, "there's plenty of time to break his heart!"

"Here we are, at the Blooms!" Meade called out as he drove into the wooded campground. Anastasia caught her breath. Kent was here and she must not see him—she must not!

Suddenly, and without warning, a standing dead tree crashed across one of the tents. Anastasia felt her heart stand still, then skip a beat. Meade jumped down.

"Wait, girls," he said, "I'll go see if anybody's hurt." After a considerable time he came back.

"The top of the tree caught one of the pickers—he's badly hurt, I guess," he told them, "unconscious—looks as if he might be done for. They've got a crowd now, sawing the tree so's to get it off him; the doctor'll be here directly—let me take you girls out of here!"

But despite Meade's protests, Anastasia pushed her way through the crowd that had gathered to the injured man. She knelt down by him and turned his face, ghastly white, the lips red with some blood drops, toward her.

"Oh, Kent, don't leave me! I can't do without you—don't leave me, dear!" Meade heard her say in a sort of quiet agony, and saw her slide her trained nurse's finger to his wrist.

At the city hospital it was days before he could speak to her—days before she left him, even to sleep.

"Why didn't you let me die, Stacy?" he cried out bitterly, the day the doctor told him he would never walk again. "I had my life insured for you the day I went to the hopyards. You would have had the money, if you'd let me die! I know I've fretted you beyond endurance, going from one job to another, and making good at none, but I've got a permanent job now—sitting in a wheel chair! Stacy, Stacy! Why didn't you let me die?"

She held him close. "Hush," she whispered, "it's a lovely job, this one. You'll always be close by where I can pet you and scold you, when I'm off duty nursing!"

The next day the Meades came in to see him. When they were leaving Meade handed Anastasia a sealed envelope.

"I found it when I shook out one of the auto rugs this morning," he said, "you must have dropped it in the car the day of the accident."

Anastasia crimsoned, then paled as she looked at it, then thrust it in her apron pocket. When the callers were gone, she flew out to the hospital kitchen.

"You haven't read your letter, sweet-heart," Kent reminded her when she came back. "It might be important."

"Oh, it wasn't anything," she smiled, "just a foolish letter I forgot to mail!"

New York's Wild Animals.

New York's census of wild animals, the species which live in forests, show there are in the state 18,549 deer which have been actually seen by game wardens. How the game wardens were able to distinguish them all is not disclosed, but George D. Pratt, commissioner. In a paper read before the International Association of Fish and Game Commissioners recently, stated that in the above number 1,573 were known to be does and 2,550 bucks. During the winter of 1916-1917, he said, there were about 50,000 deer in the state, where no does and only bucks with horns three inches long are allowed to be killed. This year, he continued, every holder of a hunting license will be required to report the amount of game killed during the season.

Fresh Air for Health.

Methuselah was the first real fresh air crank, according to the version presented by Dr. Vincent Y. Rowditch of Boston, an exchange says. The reason why Methuselah lived so long, he said, was that he knew enough to get all the fresh air that he could and to live out of doors day and night. Hippocrates, the famous early Greek physician, recommended fresh air as a cure for many diseases, and a number of ancient and medieval writers in medicine followed his suggestion.

Benjamin Franklin, in an article written in 1776, extolled the virtue of fresh air and emphasized how easy it was to prolong one's life by living in the open.

Mothers Thank Us

Keep your growing girls free from colds and weakening coughs and you are helping them to healthy vigorous womanhood. Thousands of mothers have written letters of thanks, telling what

Foley's Honey and Tar has done for their daughters in ridding them of coughs that "hung on" and weakened them just at the age when the young girls required all the physical strength they could command.

Foley's Honey and Tar is noted for its quick effect on coughs, colds and croup. Mrs. Ada Sanders, Corvallis, Ore., writes: "We use Foley's Honey and Tar as our best and only cough remedy. It never fails to cure our two girls when they have colds."

Miss Estelle Hale, of Abbotstown, teacher of Felty's School, has been ill with influenza and the school has been closed for the past week.

Do you enjoy hot lemonade and a blistering foot-bath? Better results are obtained by taking, before bed-time, Lane's cold and grip Tablets. They are pleasant to take, and you will wake up in the morning surprised at the amount of relief obtained. Thousands use them and they are guaranteed. Sold by druggists everywhere.

Try to Remember These Facts.

When you lose your temper, when you procrastinate, when you get nervous, excited, when you are blue and disappointed, when you worry, you lose much of your energy, your efficiency; you cannot bring the whole, complete, positive person to your task.

A discordant, troubled, unbalanced mind is in no condition to do good work.

It is negative, and a negative mind cannot produce.

Never mind what others do; run your own machine, think your own thought, live your own life.

Let others fret and worry, if they will; keep your poise, your serenity. Do not imitate, follow, pretend or pose.

Be self-reliant, independent. Be yourself.

Readers of Poetry.

A public librarian recently gave me evidence that man's regard for poetry is greater than woman's. Many pupils teachers and other students frequent his library and come in quest of books to help them in the study of literature.

He finds that when set to study a poet the male student generally borrows that poet's works to read for himself, but the female says: "Oh, I don't want to wade through all that; give me a book that will summarize his ideas and tell me what I ought to think about him." And the usual way is to give the girl a book that tells her what a man thinks she ought to think about poetry.—London Chronicle.

Old Names for Maladies.

Has Scotland still its own word for measles? Dean Ramsay relates that in 1775 Mrs. Betty Muirhead, who kept a boarding school for young ladies in the Trongate of Glasgow, asked a new pupil whether she had had smallpox. "Yes, ma'am," replied the girl. "I've had the sma-pox, the nirls, the blabs, the sear, the kinkhoost and the fever, the branks and the worm." "Sma-pox" and even the vague "fever" might not worry an English reader, but it needs a glossary to interpret the others in order as measles, nettle-rash, itch, whooping cough, mumps and lock-bath.
